MESSAGE

I am pleased to learn that Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs is launching the Global Housing Technology Challenge – India on 14 January, 2019 at New Delhi.

Today, the nation is witnessing a rapid increase in urbanization. We believe that urbanization is an opportunity to reduce poverty. The need of the hour is to optimize the use of technology and innovation to bring about a qualitative improvement in the field of construction. We can transform our urban landscape by adopting a comprehensive and visionary approach in related spheres of activity.

We have implemented schemes like ‘Make in India’, ‘Skill India’, and ‘Digital India’. Our Government has also introduced several measures to enhance the Ease of Doing Business. With such a change in the environment, there is a need to bring about a change in the ecosystem in a manner that the winds of change are translated into benefits for the common people. We must strive collectively to ensure that cities of the future are greener and cleaner.

The Global Housing Technology Challenge is an opportunity to attract the latest and best international standards. It will attract the best available construction techniques in the housing sector to plan and develop urban structures in our country.

I am sure that the international and national experts from various organizations and Central Ministries, institutions, as well as various stakeholders will pool together their knowledge and experience and come up with practical suggestions to make the event a success.

Best wishes for all success of Global Housing Technology Challenge – India.

(Narendra Modi)
